

Job Title - Chair of the FSRH Wales Committee

Overview

The Faculty of Sexual and Reproductive Healthcare (FSRH) is the professional home of doctors, nurses and other healthcare professionals who work in sexual and reproductive healthcare in the UK. FSRH Wales Committee is a regional committee that supports the work of the FSRH in Wales. The Chair of the FSRH Wales Committee will lead the committee and work with members to ensure that the needs of sexual and reproductive healthcare professionals in Wales are met.

Responsibilities:

- Attend the FSRH Council and write quarterly updates with the support of the secretary
- Provide leadership to the FSRH Wales Committee, including chairing meetings and overseeing committee work.
- Work with committee members to develop and deliver a programme of events and activities that meet the needs of sexual and reproductive healthcare professionals in Wales.
- Represent the FSRH Wales Committee and the FSRH at external meetings and events such as the Wales Sexual Health Board and other Government-led meetings.
- Develop and maintain relationships with key stakeholders, including healthcare professionals, policy makers and other organisations working in sexual and reproductive healthcare in Wales.
- Work with the FSRH and other FSRH committees to ensure that the needs of sexual and reproductive healthcare professionals in Wales are represented at a national level, such as the upcoming Women's' Health Plan
- Work with the FSRH Wales Committee administrative support to ensure that the committee is managed effectively and efficiently.

Qualifications:

- Must be a member of the FSRH in good standing (all member grades are eligible)
- Experience and active involvement in sexual and reproductive healthcare.
- Experience in leadership and management of committees or teams.
- Strong interpersonal and communication skills.
- Strong understanding of best practice in EDI, as it is practice in governance
- Ability to work collaboratively with others.

This is a voluntary position, but reasonable expenses will be reimbursed. The Chair of the FSRH Wales Committee will be expected to commit approximately 2-3 days per month to the role.