Annual review
Key achievements in 2018
25 years of championing sexual and reproductive healthcare for all

2018 was the year of our 25th anniversary. Here’s how we celebrated this exciting milestone.

#FSRH25 social media campaign
We asked our SRH community to share: what does sexual and reproductive healthcare mean to you?

The history of the FSRH – from conception to present day
We shared the story of how the FSRH came into being, with contributions from our FSRH founders.
Anniversary video highlights
We produced a visual timeline with key events and dates across 25 years of the FSRH.

Thank you to our amazing members, trainers, staff and supporters
We’d like to thank you – our members, trainers, staff and those who participate in our committees and FSRH Council. We appreciate your expertise, knowledge and support.

2018 – what did we achieve?

Our annual review looks back at our achievements in 2018 and how we have performed against our strategic objectives.

2018 was an exciting year for us. We reached the milestone of our 25th anniversary, improved our governance structure, developed new clinical guidance and standards, progressed our Diploma Review and re-launched our SRH Essentials one-day courses.

We also had a number of SRH policy ‘wins’ – from women in England, Scotland and Wales being able to take misoprostol at home, to a confirmation from the Secretary of State Matt Hancock to develop a women’s health strategy.

Improved our standards, clinical guidance and digital content for members

► Published three new FSRH Clinical Standards, informing our doctor and nurse members about best practice and standards in SRH
  • Service Standards on Obtaining Valid Consent in SRH Services
  • Standards for Supporting Doctors’ Appraisal and Revalidation in SRH
  • Service Standards for Medicines Management in SRH

► Produced two new FSRH Clinical Guidance documents, supporting members to provide effective SRH care
  • Drug Interactions with Hormonal Contraception
  • Contraception for Women Aged over 40

► Over 3800 members viewed our webinars on demand, an increase of 21% vs 2017

► Generated a 101% increase in unique visits to our education and training website pages
  • We invested in our website and blog/video content to share our members' stories and provide a voice for the SRH sector.
Our year in numbers – qualifications, awards and events

18 candidates passed our FSRH Membership exam

551 FSRH Diplomas awarded to doctors and nurses

922 delegates attended our FSRH conferences, contributing to their CPD and ongoing development

1204 doctors and nurses completed our Letter of Competence qualifications

966 candidates passed our eKA (electronic knowledge assessment)

678 nurses, GPs and healthcare practitioners attended our SRH Essentials courses

719 healthcare professionals worldwide completed our Contraceptive Counselling online course

3 awards from our 4-0-8 Sheffield Fund were made to fund training for healthcare professionals
Increased our media profile and lobbied for key improvements to SRH provision

- Called for high-quality, factually-based, statutory relationships and sex education (RSE)

  The Government announced this would be mandatory in all secondary schools in England from 2020.

- Engaged with health ministers, MPs and decision-makers to improve access to safe abortion care in the UK

  Women will now be able to take the second course of medication for a medical abortion (misoprostol) at home in England, Scotland and Wales.

- Our CEO spoke alongside Shadow Secretary of State Jonathan Ashworth at the Labour party conference

  This contributed to him calling for a reversal of cuts to Public Health and SRH in parliament, now official Labour Party policy.

- Outlined challenges to the delivery of SRH alongside the new Secretary of State Matt Hancock at the Conservative party conference

  This led to a confirmation by the Secretary of State to develop a women’s health strategy that addresses fragmented care, and to review viability of current commissioning arrangements.

- Launched plans to implement our vision of patient-centred, holistic care in events in Scotland and Wales

  These were attended by a number of healthcare ministers and figures, including the Scottish Public Health Minister Aileen Campbell; Alex Cole-Hamilton MSP, co-convener of the cross-party group on Sexual Health; and Dr Frank Atherton, Chief Medical Officer Wales.
Our vision
A world where sexual and reproductive healthcare is accessible for all
