School of Postgraduate Medicine

Vulval disorders: the fundamentals June 27\textsuperscript{th} 2017

Short course suitable for health care professionals working in sexual health, dermatology, gynaecology and primary care

The School of Postgraduate Medicine is delighted to be offering a one day short course for health care professionals about the assessment and management of patients with vulval problems.

The teaching programme has been designed to meet the requirements for basic training in the assessment and management of the patient with a vulval problem. The content will be suitable for specialist registrars working in dermatology, gynaecology and sexual health wishing to meet the requirements of the relevant specialist training curriculum and will also be of interest to other doctors, specialist nurses, nurse practitioners and practice nurses wishing to know more about vulval problems.

Content

The course will include:

- Specific history and examination skills: patient assessment
- Common vulval dermatoses: diagnosis and management
- Vulval pain syndromes and their management
- Benign, premalignant and malignant vulval disease
- Vulval problems and urinary incontinence

Who should attend?

The course will be of interest to:

- Specialist registrars working in dermatology, sexual health, and obstetrics and gynaecology
- General Practitioners, GPwSIs, speciality doctors, practice nurses, nurse practitioners, specialist nurses in sexual health and dermatology
- Family planning health care professionals, community gynaecologists
- Anyone performing regular cervical smear examinations

Dates

June 27\textsuperscript{th} 2017 9am to 5pm (registration from 8.30)

Application

To apply please contact Vikki Bylo

Email: v.bylo@herts.ac.uk

Telephone: 01707 285810

Fees

£135

Venue

University of Hertfordshire, College Lane Campus, Hatfield. Herts, AL10 9AB

For further information contact Madeleine Flanagan

Email: M.flanagan@herts.ac.uk Tel: +44 (0) 1707 286400